SOUTHEASTERN HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY LEGACY GARDEN

The Legacy Garden is a collaborative gift coordinated by the Southeastern Horticultural Society and, prior to 2008, the Southeastern Flower Show to a deserving organization in the Atlanta community that requests a garden area to meet the program objectives of the organization.

The endeavor began in 1994 as a way to use plant material that was left at the end of the Southeastern Flower Show. In recent years, the Legacy Garden has evolved into a broader collaborative effort among the SHS, the Flower Show's exhibitors, area businesses and others to provide a meaningful garden donation to our annual Legacy Garden beneficiary.

SHS works with the beneficiary to determine its needs and then coordinates a collaborative donation of plants, garden accessories and volunteer labor to help meet those needs.

Hundreds of volunteer hours and thousands of dollars worth of donated plant material, supplies and accessories go into building each Legacy Garden.

The Legacy Garden installations have been used to beautify the following locations:

- 1994 Amberwood Village, Reynoldstown
- 1995 City Hall East
- 1996 Fourth Ward Neighborhood
- 1997 House of Love and Hope, a foster home for young children
- 1998 The Bridge, a residential treatment center for abused children
- 1999 The Lang-Carson Community Center, Reynoldstown
- 2000 The Samuel L. Jones Boys and Girls Club, Decatur
- 2001 Charles R. Drew Charter School, East Lake Neighborhood
- 2002 Cook Elementary School and C.W. Hill Elementary School, Atlanta Public Schools
- 2003 Historic Oakland Foundation, Oakland Cemetery
- 2004 Historic Oakland Foundation, Oakland Cemetery
- 2005 Winship Cancer Institute, Emory Healthcare (Healing Gardens Project)
- 2006 Wesley Woods Hospital's Horticultural Therapy Garden, Emory Healthcare

SOUTHEASTERN FLOWER SHOW HORTICULTURE EXHIBITING TIPS

Conditioning, Grooming and Showing Specimens

Read the Schedule (Exhibitor's Guide). Check for correct class and subclass. Note size limitations and plant exclusions.

Proper identification of genus, species and common name is required. Do research ahead of time. This will greatly decrease your entry time, last minute confusion and stress. If required, give variety and cultivar. References and nomenclature help is available at the Show, but consultation may slow the progress of your entry.

The following pertains to Classes H07 Herbaceous and H08 Woody Cuts.

Cutting and Conditioning

1. Cut the specimen properly. Cutting in the early morning or late afternoon is best. Use a sharp knife, cut at a slant, and put immediately in a bucket of water that you have carried to the garden. Very warm water (100 to 110 degrees) and a depth of 1/3 the length of the stems is best.
2. Select healthy specimens with graceful form. On a flowering branch, it is desirable to have some blossoms fully opened but others still bud. Never have blossoms that are "over the hill". Leaves must be strong. Have good color and be free of damage.
3. Cut several specimens of each variety. Take all the stems to the Show so the best ones can be selected for entry.
4. Condition the specimen properly. Conditioning tips for particular plants can be found in reference books, but here are some general categories:

Bleeders (excludes milky substance): Seal by searing cut ends in flame 30 seconds and put in cool water. Hellebores are included in this category.

Woody: Slit or hammer up to 1" before placing in warm water. This category includes:

flowering quince, winter honeysuckle, winter jasmine, flowering almond, forsythia, rosemary, pussy willow, spirea, thunbergia, oriental magnolia, and winter sweet.

Hollow: Re-cut under water to prevent air bubbles that stop absorption. Place in warm water (90 degrees or warm bath temperature) and then cool. Generally, warm water is absorbed more quickly than cold. Narcissus and Amaryllis are in this category.

Camellias: Cut camellias (best with two perfect leaves facing up so you don't see the underside when looking at the bloom). Use a flower tube for transport on cotton batting in an enclosed plastic container. Keep cool. For ease of transportation if flower tubes are not available stick the stem in a grape.

Transporting and Staging Cut Specimens

1. Transporting your specimens to the Show. Soft drink cans placed in cartons can be used to help separate specimens and reduce spillage. It is also desirable to use a plastic crate with crushed newspaper between specimens to keep them from falling.
2. Wedging Material. Wedging material and containers for cut specimens will be provided by the Show. Use the wedging material to assure that the branch and blossom will be at the proper angle and can be seen to its best advantage by the judges. The judges should not have to bend over to see the blossoms at their best
3. Camellia Cups. Special cups will be provided by the Show for camellia entries.

Grooming

The following pertains to Herbaceous and Woody Cuts and potted Exhibits.

Grooming is essential: It is recommended that the bulk of grooming is completed prior to arrival at the SFS site. Space is provided at the Show for last minute grooming.

1. Examine your entry(ies) very carefully: Remove spent blossoms, damaged leaves, any foreign material, (dirt and debris) and dead stems. (Do not remove the calyx -papery wrap- from narcissus bloom.
2. Foliage: Wash foliage with water (1/3 vinegar to 2/3 water) if leaves are smooth. Brush with soft brush (paint brush) if leaves are hairy. No oiling or spraying of leaves allowed. Trimming of leaves should be nonobtrusive and following the natural lines of the leaf. Any fresh cuts can be camouflaged by touching the new cut with a brown or black magic marker.
3. Top Dressing: The choice of top dressing should be appropriate to the plant. For example, moss or small bark for ferns and bulbs, pebbles for sun loving plants such as cacti. Keep the soil slightly below the level of pot so that the top dressing does not wash out when watered.
4. Pots: Check for correct pot size. Pots should be clean of all dirt, free of cracks and salt deposits. The inside rim should also be cleaned. Standard clay pots are preferred. They should be the correct size and appropriate to the proportion of the plant. Fiber pots and ridged containers (including black or green nursery "production" pots) are not acceptable. Dirt in pot should be level.

After grooming is complete, examine the exhibit from all angles, including from above, to assure the plant is in outstanding Show condition.

GEORGIA'S PROTECTED PLANTS
